CAPT Elizabeth Satran, USAF

Elizabeth (Lizzy) Satran’s journey with Imprints of Honor began as a freshman at Cactus Shadows High School, where she served as Chapter VP, led book reception committees, and completed 20 veteran interviews. Each veteran shared powerful experiences: serving as a WWII nurse, surviving as a Vietnam POW, facing PTSD as an Iraq War veteran, and many more stories of courage and sacrifice. These encounters imprinted lessons of perseverance, gratitude, and a sense of duty. “It’s not the job you have, it’s the job you do,” has become her mantra.

A Captain in the US Air Force, she currently serves as Chief of Intelligence at Nellis Air Force Base, Nevada, leading a team that provides critical support for fighter and reconnaissance aircraft. Prior duty stations have included Kunsan AB, Republic of Korea; and Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson, Alaska (NORAD and Pacific Region).

Lizzy holds a Master of Science in Global Security, and a Bachelor of Science in Biomedical Sciences. She has the Air and Space Commendation Medal, National Defense Service Medal, and Global War on Terror Medal. A finalist for the USAF Rated Officer Board, she also holds a private pilot’s license.

Lizzy continues to engage in our mission by conducting interviews and volunteering on our editing and scholarship review committees.

At the 2015 Book Reception panel with WWII WAVES veteran Vivian Fraizer.

WWII Navy veteran Ralph Cope bonded with Lizzy, calling her his adopted granddaughter.
